prayers.

Councilman Schoon thanked him.

Marty stated that they have had some really good conversations with Leopardo as he has kept the up to date. Those are going really well. He thinks the Board had a chance to do some questioning at their last meeting to get some answers and a brief presentation on some of the projects that they picked. They had another meeting this past Friday and that one went really well. They are moving it along very quickly. He sat down with staff earlier today and they talked about Kennedy Avenue. Kennedy Avenue is one of two manned stations. Kennedy Avenue has a round the clock shift of three personnel and so does Robertsdale. They will never look at automating Robertsdale just because it is so far north and if they had a problem up there, it would take too long because of different train tracks you have to cross over to get somebody up there. Kennedy Avenue is not the same situation and for many years they have looked at automating Kennedy Avenue. They had a good, long conversation about that today to see what the possibilities were to do that. He will say for the record, that if they do automate Kennedy Avenue, those three employees that are employed there to operate Kennedy Avenue would be shifted here to the Plant because there are plenty of things for them to do here as operators. They are currently one operator down right now and probably by the end of the year with somebody retiring they will need two and have three to pick from. He is excited about that project because it is something that he has talked about for many years. Everything else that they have is automated including the Plant here. They have live bodies that watch it and make adjustments where needed and it works well. He thinks this is something that staff is very excited about, he is very excited about. He talked to Mr. Hickey today- this is something that they can put into the Leopardo project because the cost savings that they would save in manpower at Kennedy Avenue are currently just under a half a million dollars- that is salaries, wages he should say. That will be taken out of that cost center and surely be put into the Plant where they need or would have those costs because they are short on some personnel, so the little under a half a million dollars in savings on wages could be the key to getting it financed under Leopardo because of the fact that is what they look at- the savings and then they can get the financing done, they will not have to bid it out and it does not affect their bond capabilities which he wants to keep as flexible with Rachel as possible in case they get hit with something big unexpected that has to be repaired, that needs to be done immediately and that is when they bond out for it, to get it done. Depending on all of these different pieces of the puzzle, customer communities, monies owed, automation, he sees it all slowly coming together in a very positive way for the District. This is going back to the time when he and Commissioner Hawkins sat on the Board and all they seen on their financial statements was page after page of red, red, red and they made some hard decisions and changed it to where they are today, but he actually sees with some further implications, changes and upgrades that they can do even better including selling their gas. That is the most exciting one that he can think of. Other than that, if the Board has any questions for him, he would be happy to entertain those.
